

Workshop: The Russo-Ukraine War in the New Global Order

Join us for an in-depth interactive workshop that tracks the changes in Russia's war against Ukraine since the US election of Donald Trump as President and looks at where things appear to be going.

Professor Marta Dyczok of the Political Science Department will lead this workshop. It is designed to help students navigate through this crucial turning point in global events where the United States has destroyed the existing global order and sided with Russia against Ukraine, Canada, the EU and Mexico.

Active learning will be the heart of this workshop to help students dispel the disinformation cloud surrounding the war and larger global changes. Multi-media information will be presented by Prof. Dyczok, and students will engage in hands on activities. Also, an expert from Ukraine will join the workshop live via ZOOM to share the perspective from the ground. Students will have the opportunity to not only listen but to share their views and ask questions.

When: Wednesday 19 March 2025, 1:00 – 4:00 pm

Where: SSC 7210
